Tuesday, 25 October 2016

Because more than 60% of Australians
will access aged care services in their lifetime.

Hayes Knight

For many families, their initiation into the world of aged care is swift when a family member can no longer live independently. Aged care can be confusing, often expensive, and time consuming.

This special forum demystifies aged care for those keen to ensure that they have access to the best possible outcomes in their senior years, and for family members who are likely to be responsible for managing the care of their loved ones.

Understanding the costs of aged care and figuring out how to fund it when something goes wrong can be stressful for families.

Massive decisions often need to be made in a short space of time that affect personal cash flow for retirees and their ability to pay for care and sustain their income.

Deciding whether to keep or sell the family home is often one of the most significant choices faced.

At this concise seminar Hayes Knight will cover:

- Key decisions faced by families helping those with aged care needs
- The key costs involved
- Understanding funding options
- Case studies illustrating how strategic planning can increase income for residents
